What is a legal protest to commercial paper? On this subject the Supreme Court of Missouri has made the following hold at al. on a promissory note protested for non-payment at St. Genevieve, Mo., on the 24th of May, 1857. The notary, who protested it, restified that he mailed the usual notices to the defendants on the day of the protest, enclosed in envelopes addressed to them at St. Louis. The no-tices and envelopes were produced in court and were identified by the notary, ut there were no remarks upon them in dicating that they had ever passed through the postoffice. The defendants tostified that they received the notices in St. Louis, June 8th, fifteen days after the protest; that they were delivered to them by a party not known to them, but who was who was not a mail carrier: that they had been unable to find this party, although diligent search had been made for him. The defendants then offered to put in evidence his declarations made at the time of the delivery of the notices, which, on objection, the Circuit Court excluded, and an exception was taken to the Supreme Court. This objection is regarded by the Supreme Court as immaterial, the only point necessary to the sult being an establishment not of the delivery, but the sulty forwarded from Ste, Genevieve that ience his declarations made at the time of the delivery of the notices, which, on Assection, the Circuit Court excluded, raised on this point, it is taken for granted. The judgment of the lower court was consequently affirmed.
